PRESS RELEASE

V-ZUG's CombiCookTop V4000 receives prestigious iF Design Award

Once again, there was a huge number of applicants for this year's iF Design Award. When awarding the prestigious seal of approval, jurors had to consider almost 11,000 submissions from 57 countries. The CombiCookTop V4000 from V-ZUG received the prize in category 1.14 Kitchen and the Product discipline. With its integrated extractor, understated design and intuitive controls, this hob thoroughly impressed the panel of 132 independent, international experts. The traditional Swiss company is thus among this year's winners of the globally renowned design label.

A symbol of outstanding design

Since 1954, the iF Design Award has been an internationally recognized hallmark of excellent design. The iF Design brand has become a global symbol of outstanding design achievement, and the iF Design Award is one of the most important design prizes in the world. The prize honours design achievements in all disciplines: product design, packaging, communications and service design, architecture and interior design, as well as professional concept, user experience (UX) and user interface (UI) design. All of the winners are presented at www.ifdesign.com and published in the iF Design app.
